Dear Bill:

ago again

I wrote some time ago to my Belgian friend, about van Dyck's manuscript, I was afraid that it might have gone astray. I have now his reply, with your sheet, which I asked to get returned. My friend writes that in order to understand the text properly, he has had it translated into modern Flemish. He is working on the solution, but as yet without success. He thinks that it is a simple substitution cipher, but as the cipher passages are so short, and concern different subjects, it is not easy to work with probable words.

Anhyhow, I shall be hearing from him later.

With best regards,

Sincerely

Trus
